FROM ROOTS TO STREET: INDIGENOUS STORIES ON CANVAS

This Indigenous-based spring break workshop invites participants to explore Indigenous art, culture, and storytelling through hands-on creative practice. Using canvas board as our foundation, participants will learn about traditional Indigenous visual storytelling while blending contemporary influences such as graffiti, games, and collaborative play. The workshop creates a culturally safe space where youth can express identity, imagination, and lived experience through art. Over the course of the program, participants will develop a completed canvas artwork that reflects both ancestral teachings and modern creative voices. On the final day, caregivers are invited to join us in a community showcase to celebrate the stories, process, and artwork created throughout the spring break.
